General (Graded courses):

Students who earn an "A" in this course will demonstrate mastery of theoretical material covered in the course, excellent written skills, and strong conceptual skills. Examples include sophisticated application of theory to case examples and their own experiences; ability to express themselves in a clear and organized fashion, both orally and in writing; written work that is free of spelling, grammatical, and/or APA-style errors; appropriate integration of relevant literature into written arguments; demonstration of self-awareness and willingness to engage in self-exploration; participation in class discussions and activities; regular attendance in class; prompt arrival to each class.

Students who earn a "B" in this course will demonstrate sufficient understanding of theoretical material and good writing skills, but lack the sophistication and depth in their writing and conceptual skills needed to achieve an "A". Examples include occasionally unclear and awkward writing, including presence of spelling, grammatical and/or APA-style errors; difficulty in application of theory; some blocks in self-awareness and/or difficulty engaging in self-exploration; infrequent or inconsistent class participation.

Students who earn a "C+" or lower in this class will demonstrate insufficient understanding of theoretical material, poor writing skills, and/or weak conceptual skills. Examples include unsophisticated or superficial application of theory; unclear, unsophisticated, or unscholarly writing; significant gaps in self-awareness, and/or blatant resistance to engage in self-exploration. NO CREDIT will be earned for the course.
